Grady-White 325 Freedom

Create on-the-water memories.

When it comes to fulfilling the individual needs of its loyal owner base, Grady-White Boats has long established itself as the kind of company whose personnel — from the front office to the craftspeople, installers and finishers on the manufacturing line — have highly-skilled hands on every facet of production. And with the 325 Freedom, the highly-venerated, Greenville, North Carolina-based boatbuilder presents a versatile dual console fishing boat that is at home while competing in offshore waters as it is providing family fun and entertainment with friends.

“Our company itself speaks to how connected we are to our owners,” says Kris Carroll, president of Grady-White Boats. “It is a very personal and important aspect as to what kind of organization we are.”

Riding on its proven SeaV<sup>2</sup> bottom, the multipurpose boat offers an open cockpit area that’s more than 32 square feet. Padded bolsters all around provide added comfort while battling with big fish. Other fishing features here include a cutting board surface with a livewell beneath, a transom fishbox, rod storage underneath the gunwales, a hidden tackle box and eight rod holders — four surrounding the cockpit and another four are mounted on the standard hardtop. In addition, there are rear-facing seats here, along with Grady-White’s patented folding transom bench. For the watersports enthusiasts, there’s a handy ski tow pylon concealed in the transom that easily sets up and disappears within seconds.

Luxurious creature comforts abound on the 325 Freedom, including a head compartment to port with a shower, sink and ample storage. Forward of the starboard helm is an easy-access enclosed berth with even more storage. The walk-through bow area can be quickly sealed off from the helm, and fully forward are a pair of lounges surrounded by bolsters. A full protection hardtop with a standard SureShade offers relief from a hot, sunny day.

Add options such as a generator, air conditioning, a wetbar and a refrigerator, and your Grady-White Freedom 325 will provide you with many memorable on-the-water experiences. ★
